

Great Jail-Break on Local Ranch

Legend With a Kick

There should have been a special picture in The Star before now, and I'll tell you why it didn't come off.

As you know from occasional items we've printed the last year or so local cattlemen have sustained losses from buzzards swooping down on newborn calves and either pecking out their eyes or killing them. It's abnormal for buzzards to attack live creatures, but supposedly the buzzards have been driven to desperation because rendering plants have picked up dead animals in recent years.

Anyway, the cattlemen have declared war on buzzards with a vengeance, and one of the leaders in that war is Lee Norton, transplanted Arizonian who is ranching a few miles north of Hope on the old Blavins highway. Lee told me about a buzzard trap he had rigged up and which was highly successful in snaring the birds alive — as many as 20 at a time.

I said it would make an interesting newspaper picture. Lee said he should have thought about that, but unfortunately he had gone into the trap and killed all the birds. He said it was doubly unfortunate because, as he discovered later, it was easier to trap the buzzards when some of their fellows were allowed to remain in the pen as live decoys.

He said he'd let me know the next time he had another batch of buzzards and I could go out and make the picture.

Lee left word for me over the week-end that the trap was back in business with a dozen or more buzzards. So I drove out to the ranch Monday, couldn't find either Lee or the trap — but I left a note on his door to show I had been there.

Yesterday Lee looked me up downtown. He had trouble. Between the time he told me the trap was ready for the picture some enterprising buzzard tore a hole in the barbed wire — and they all got out. We're delayed on this assignment — but I thought I'd let you know we are still working on it. And since it's unlikely our section will ever run out of buzzards we'll get that picture one of these days.

The following story was relayed to me from an unnamed source by Roy Anderson:

So That's How Come!
Once there was a king and he hired him, a prophet to prophesy to him.

One day the king noticed to visit his best girl. So he asked his prophet was it liable to come rain before sundown. And the prophet says, "No, King, not even a sizzle-sizzle."

So the king puts on his best clothes and starts out. Along comes a farmer riding a jackass. "King," says the farmer, "if you ain't afraid to get wetted, you'd best go back home 'cause hit's comin' a trash-mover and a gully-washer."

The king laughed. "I hired me a high-waged prophet to prophesy me my weather. He 'tows it' hain't comin' on, not even a sizzle-sizzle."

So the king went on, and hit come a trash-mover and a gully-washer. The king's clothes was wetted. His best girl seen him and laughed. So the king called the farmer and he said, "I aim to hire you to prophesy me my weather."

"King," said the farmer, "I ain't no prophet. All I know is that when hit's a comin' on to rain the ears of my jackass lops down. The lower they lops the harder hit's a comin' on to rain."

And that's how come jackasses have been holdin' most of the high-waged gov'ment jobs ever since.

Garrett Names New Hospital Committee

County Judge U. C. Garrett today announced the appointment of a new Hempstead County Hospital Committee. The following persons were appointed to serve on this Committee:

Clifford Franks, Chairman, J. T. Liebong, Secretary, Miss Beryl Henry, Warren Ginter, and Roy Anderson.

Also, the Judge announced the appointment of B. W. Edwards and Leo Ray as Building Commissioners, and instructed them to prepare, with the assistance of an architect, preliminary plans and specifications and an estimate of cost, and present to the committee for their approval and recommendations.

A meeting of the committee was held this morning in the office of the county judge, at which time the judge outlined to the committee his aims and objectives relative to the proposed hospital, and instructed the committee to investigate all possible sites, examine the plans and estimate of costs as presented to them by the Building Commissioners, and to make a preliminary report and recommendations to the county court within thirty days.

The committee, in its meeting this morning, designated Robert LaGrone and Lloyd Spencer as advisers to the committee to assist in all financial aspects of the committee's work. And the Doctors of Hope have been asked to select two of their number to assist the Building Commissioners and the Committee on matters pertaining to the type of construction to be erected.

Judge Garrett in a statement this morning said "It is my desire to begin construction of a County Hospital as soon as practical, and that the construction be financed without applying for Federal Aid. I am also aware of the tremendous responsibility and burden that is placed upon the members of the committee and commissioners; but I feel that it is a group of persons who will give untiringly of their time and ability to this project, which is an important step toward the betterment of the welfare of the citizens of this County."

U. S. Nominates Romulo of the Philippines

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., (UP) — The United States grouped its forces behind Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines today in preparation for the first ballot in the United Nations Security Council for selecting a new secretary-general.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge surprisingly took the initiative in a closed meeting of the Security Council yesterday when he nominated Romulo for the $55,000 a year job now held by Norway's Trygve Lie.

Russia nominated Polish Foreign Minister Stanislaw Skrzesczeski and Denmark, seconded by Britain, proposed general assembly President Lester B. Pearson of Canada.

The selection of a new secretary-general overshadowed proceedings of the assembly's political committee. The committee scheduled two sessions today to continue its debate on Greek prisoners allegedly still held in Communist countries and to consider the report of the committee on collective measures against future aggression.

The Security Council scheduled another closed session for tomorrow afternoon. It was possible that a vote on the secretary-general would be taken then, the first of a series expected to be required before the council agrees on a nominee to recommend to the general assembly for election.

There was much speculation as to why Lodge rushed in to place Romulo's name in nomination first. Council procedure requires that nominations be voted upon in the order in which they are made.

That means Romulo should be voted upon first and should be given the seven votes necessary for a council recommendation. It would be almost obligatory for Russia to vote him, this was considered certain, because Russia would insist on a vote of record on its own candidate.

Observers agreed with Lodge when he said it was too early to tell whether either Romulo or Pearson could hope to escape a Soviet veto.

"It's being played too close to the chest," one observer said.

Mary Drayton Prepares New York Comedy

A Hope playwright will have a new comedy on Broadway April 20. She is Mary Drayton, in private life the former Hortense McCormick daughter of Ed McCormick of this city.

Miss Drayton prepared the play script for "Debut," a comedy based on the novel "Maria and the Captain" by Isabel Dunn, which will star Sally Forrest of the movies and Tom Helmore, who is Miss Drayton's husband.

The New York production is owned by William Dozier, executive producer of dramatic telecasts for the Columbia Broadcasting System, and will be produced out of the office of Guthrie McClintic. Mr. McClintic will handle the production personally.

Tax Revision Program Passes at Last Moment

LITTLE ROCK, Mo. — The House in the last 15 minutes of the 1953 legislative session today put to a vote of the people's approval or rejection of Gov. Cherry's proposed constitutional amendment for tax assessment revision.

Thirty minutes earlier the House had given an indication of its disposition when it voted to limit debate on proposed submission of the measure which already had been approved in the Senate.

The House voted to restrict debate to 15 minutes to a side thus assuring that final action would be taken before adjournment of the session at noon.

An elated Gov. Francis Cherry — winner in a last ditch battle for passage of the "keynote" of his legislative program — today praised the work of Arkansas' 50th General Assembly as "progressive."

Cherry's comment came as the legislators packed their bags to return home after the 60-day session, confident they had done a good job for the state. Not a single member of either House of Senate polled had a word of criticism.

By LEON HATCH AND RAY STEPHENS
LITTLE ROCK, Mo. — The battered forces of Gov. Francis Cherry, reeling close to defeat before a die-hard filibuster, fought back to win House approval of the tax revision proposal as time ran out today.

Shortly after approval of the governor's proposed constitutional amendment to drastically revamp the state's tax assessment structure, the 50th General Assembly adjourned until 1955.

A filibuster against the tax revision program, aimed at keeping it off the ballot at the next general election, started in the House yesterday, and hopes for passage of the bills faded with each passing minute.

But Cherry, who heretofore had enjoyed the co-operation traditionally reserved for first term governors by the Legislature, pulled together long enough to get his plan across.

Despite the Assembly's approval of nearly all of the remainder of Cherry's program, the governor had said the success of his administration depended on the tax plan, which he still must sell to the voters.

The comprehensive amendment is designed to put all taxable property on the tax books. Cherry hopes that it will solve the problem of financing local government — counties, cities and school districts — and relieve the state of a big share of the load.

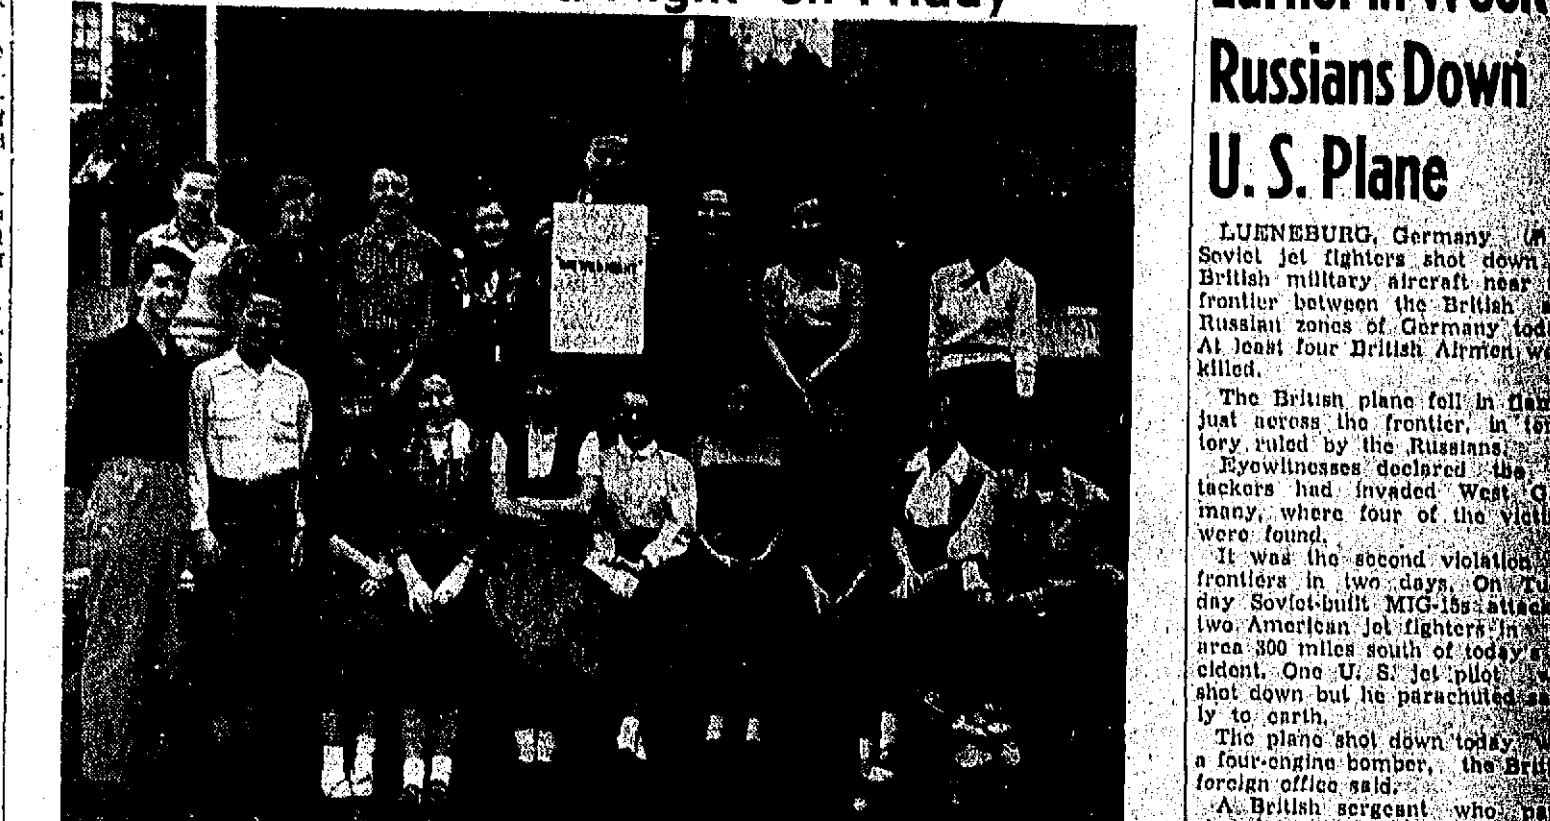

Among other things, the amendment would (1) require all assessments at 100 per cent of market value; (2) limit the millage rates for cities and counties; (3) establish a school district; (4) establish a State Board of Equalization to enforce the new program; and (5) give the people complete control over local expenditures by forcing the political sub-divisions to submit their budgets to the voters for approval.

Rep. L. H. Autry, chairman of the House Budget Committee, said that appropriations for approaching 2-year fiscal period totaled more than 385 million dollars.

The Legislature approved an imposing list of new laws, most of them on the governor's recommendation, that are touted as the saving grace of Arkansas. Cherry's first-string proposals — Fiscal Code, tax revision, the revenue stabilization law and welfare reforms — generally met only token opposition.

Youth of 16 Admits Killing Two Girls

NEW YORK CITY (AP) — A 16-year-old boy admitted today, authorities said, that he lured two little girl schoolmates into a woods and killed them.

The boy, Carleton Mason of New York City, denied he attacked the victims sexually but refused to tell his motive. Dist. Atty. John Skahan of Rockland County said.

Coroner M. J. Moses reported an autopsy showed the girls — Esther Nagy, 5, and Marjorie Boudreau, 6, both of New York City — were victims of sodomy.

Esther was stabbed to death and Marjorie died of a brain hemorrhage, caused by a blow on the head. The autopsy also showed evidence of strangulation in both cases, Moses said.

The Mason boy was a member of a searching party which found Marjorie's body Sunday night, several hours after she and Esther disappeared from the playground of an endowed boarding school for underprivileged children.

He helped carry Marjorie's body back to the school and gave her artificial respiration. Esther's body was found later.

The district attorney said the boy would be charged with first degree murder and an arraignment later today.

Mason, after many hours of questioning since suspicion narrowed toward him Monday afternoon, said he enticed the two girls from the Lakeside School at South Spring Valley, N. Y., by telling them someone wanted to see them.

Mason was questioned after it was discovered that a knife he owned was missing.

Brewery Fire Brings Death to 13 Persons

NEWARK, N.J., (AP) — The death toll of a fire at the Anheuser-Busch brewery yesterday has been fixed at 13. All the victims were construction workers who suffocated when trapped in a maze of huge fermentation tanks.

Fire raced up the cork-lined wall of a windowless storage wing at the 20 million dollar brewery. Black choking smoke filled the six-story brick wing, touching off panic among the 80 men at work there. Twenty-nine were hospitalized for smoke poisoning.

Light couldn't pierce the thick curtain of smoke in the wing, and the workmen groped blindly for exits.

About half of the victims were fermentation tanks. Small manholes just a little more than two feet in diameter were the only exits from the tanks.

"Those in the tanks were trapped like rats," said Foreman Fred Watkins. "They probably never heard the fire warning, and if they did they couldn't have made it up the ladder before they were overcome."

Other victims suffocated in a labyrinth of tiny corridors between the tanks on each floor.

Many of the masons, carpenters and laborers who managed to scramble to safety plunged back into the smoke-filled wing to help the others escape. Two of these volunteers — Earl Grainger and William Hageman of Newark — lost their lives in the rescue attempt.

Cause of the fire was unknown.

Grave Danger Seen by Plane Incident

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. officials today further deepened the rift between American and Soviet military planes along the East-West border, when they shot down a Soviet-made MIG-15 fighter plane over Czech territory.

That was a major reason for the latest incident, it was said, was that the Soviet plane was flying over Czech territory, which was not a part of the U.S. zone.

Informants here said that a U.S. airplane at Wiesbaden there was no doubt whatever that the U.S. plane and a Soviet plane were patrolling the German U.S. zone when the incident occurred.

Senators Hint Shakeup in Korea

By EDWIN R. HAKKINEN
WASHINGTON, D.C. — Some of the nation's top military commanders today hinted that they believe a shakeup in the U.S. command in Korea is in the offing.

The Senate Intelligence Committee was called today to hear testimony from Gen. James A. Van Fleet, who has been in Korea since the outbreak of the Korean war.

Two committee members said they would press for a shakeup in the U.S. command in Korea.

All Around the Town

By The Star Staff

April 1, names of persons receiving welfare will be available to the public and in all probability some of these names will be forced off the rolls as non-deserving. There are likely to be many "neighbors" just waiting. Withholding names from the public is unjust because taxpayers have a right to see where their money is going. . . . So remember, Mr. Taxpayer, if you want to see the records, money and otherwise, just step up and take a look — and this applies to all departments, such as courts, county, city, schools, etc. Certainly much of the trouble today is what has been withheld from public eyes.

Friday at Oaklawn Park, Hot Springs, the feature race will be designated in honor of Hope. No doubt many Hope people will be on hand.

Ralph Mayo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Smead Mayo of Eureka, Calif., formerly of Guernsey, has been given two awards for outstanding football play as a Junior in Eugene High. He was also voted the most valuable player of the year.

Frank Douglas is beaming about his new pharmacist at Crescent Drug. He is Joe Wade of Dallas, formerly of Amity and Little Rock and has had 30 years experience. He and his wife are looking for a place to settle down here.

From Golden Meadow, La. comes a letter from Dick Fugler, former Tulane U. room mate of Carl Dennis Smith, an ex-Hobcat football star, who played at Tulane. He has heard that Denny was killed in action in Korea, although no such report has been made here. If anyone knows the whereabouts of Denny or his family, please write to Mr. Fugler, Gen. Del Golden Meadow, La. And everyone hopes the report isn't true.

to $1.25 per ton. Opponents of the bill struggled vainly to keep it from the Senate, but once it got there a hard core of anti-tax senators promptly amended it to death.

But despite a lack of controversy the governor's program, which swept some ancient, time-honored taboos from state government, gained the lion's share of public notice.

One of the Cherry proposals—a constitutional amendment that would force assessment of all property at its full market value and limit the amount of the millage that could be collected—must win approval by the people. The Legislature took care of those Cherry proposals:

1. The Fiscal Code Act that revamped the state's financial and purchasing procedures; set up a new Department of Finance and Administration, and is designed to save millions of dollars through centralized purchasing, elimination of waste and more efficient operation.

2. The Revenue Stabilization Act that rearranged revenue allocations to the various state agencies, and set rigid allotments for each department, agency and institution.

3. Establishment of loan weight limits on heavy motor vehicles at 50,000 pounds, exclusive of the front axle.

4. Equal distribution of an estimated additional six million dollars for schools, provided under the new Revenue Stabilization Act, to all school districts on a "per teacher unit basis." This is designed to give all teachers a $3 per week pay increase, and bring the state-wide average salary up to $2,400.

5. An enabling act to set the new 6-member Highway Commission on its feet, with a $15,000-a-year director and new procedures for obtaining roads, rights-of-way that will force the counties to pay their share. Cherry lost one highway bill, which would have lowered the Legislature of its sole power to remove roads from the state highway system and placed the authority in the Commission.

The major reform in the Welfare Department wasn't the result of a Cherry proposal, but it had the governor's wholehearted support. This was Sen. James P. Baker Jr.'s measure that opened the welfare rolls to public inspection.

Cherry's major defeat of the session came on a bill that would have forced those getting old age assistance from the Welfare Department to give the state on any real estate they owned. The bill, never considered in the Senate, ran into a storm of opposition in the House, which defeated it, 18 for, 67 against.

The governor suffered another defeat when he attempted to block passage of a bill removing the state two per cent sales tax from food, seed and fertilizer—a bill backed by poultry and livestock producers.

Both the Senate and House passed the bill by overwhelming majorities, and then refused to back track on their action despite tremendous pressure from Cherry and his legislative leaders.

The governor, who charged that the state could ill afford to lose the revenue, still had not signed or vetoed the bill as the session ended.

The success of Cherry's program was pinpointed by the prompt passage of the first bill he offered for consideration. The measure abolished the State Racing Commission, and reorganized it to allow Cherry to name a new body.

In the waning days of the administration of ex-Gov. Sid McMath, the governor and his Racing Commission became involved in a ruckus over establishment of a new horse racing track in East Arkansas. McMath fired the commission, and appointed another which rejected bids for the track, prompted by the same group that lost an attempt to build Dixie Downs in West Memphis.

The Legislature gave Cherry a new commission in an effort to clear up the muddled situation.

Social legislation garnered its share of attention from the legislators, who passed Arkansas' first pre-marital physical examination law among other things.

Sen. Ellis Pagan of Little Rock, whose fiery oratory probably saved the measure from extinction in the Senate, said the House had rejected similar legislation for eight consecutive sessions.

This time the House passed the bill first, and the Senate was busy with the bill when it was introduced. The bill requires an examination, specifically a blood test, before a marriage license can be purchased.

It is designed to reduce congenital syphilis, which strikes an estimated 80 infants annually in Arkansas. The Legislature also stripped County, Circuit and Chancery Judges of their right to waive the 3-day waiting period required between the time of application for a marriage license and the wedding. There had been charges of marriage mills operating in Arkansas, especially in those counties bordering other states.

Rep. Lawrence Dawson of Pine Bluff also won approval of a bill to make it harder to get a divorce by providing that no decree can be issued until 30 days after application is filed. But an effort to extend the residence requirement to qualify for a divorce was defeated soundly in the House.

New departments were created in the state government, and the legislators raised the salaries of practically every employee on the payroll. The latter proposition had the support of Cherry, who pleaded for better pay to attract better men into government service.

Major new departments created by the Legislature include the Forestry and Parks Commission and the Publicity and Information Commissions. Both formerly were units of the Resources and Development Commission.

Better protection for Arkansas forests is the primary aim of the new forestry agency, but the Assembly also gave it power to issue revenue bonds to improve state parks.

Sen. Tom Allen a Brinkley, newspaper publisher, authored the bill setting up the new Publicity Commission, and he made sure that at least three newsmen would be employed in top jobs. The $7,200 a year executive director of the agency must have at last five years in newspaper or radio work, as do the two members of the 5-man commission.

One new agency, the Rural Association Board aroused a controversy in the Senate after it was found that the Arkansas Rural Association had retained Lefell Gentry, campaign manager for Cherry, to help draw up the bill. A letter circulated by the Association to its members asking for funds to help win passage of the bill caused some senators to demand that the Association announce publicly that no "slush fund" was involved. This the Association did, and the bill finally was passed.

The liquor dealers came in for their usual amount of attention. The Senate passed a bill raising the gallonage tax on liquor from $2.50 to $2.75, and repealing the three per cent excise tax and the two per cent sales tax on the beverage.

Sen. Marshall Shackelford, author of the bill, claimed it was designed to increase the state's revenue while lowering the retail price of liquor. This minor miracle would be accomplished by increasing sales through the lower price, and a subsequent reduction in the bootleggers' business. The bill did not pass the House.

Drunk drivers got a hard look from the Legislature, and as a result two bills tightening the laws against drunken driving were adopted. One, by Rep. Harry Colay of Magnolia, would make drunk drivers responsible for accidental deaths subject to prosecution for second degree murder. The other provides mandatory imprisonment from 10 days to one year and a fine of from $250 to $1,000 on the second conviction for drunk driving.

Proponents of the measure said

Organized labor's program didn't fare so well, and the unions lost a fight against a bill to prohibit the picketing of railroad spur tracks into struck plants, when the railway isn't directly involved. The minimum wages of women workers, aimed at forcing restaurants and hotels to pay higher salaries, was amended to death in the Senate after passing the House. The Senate defeated a labor-sponsored bill that would have applied the felony provisions of the anti-strike violence law to management as well as the unions.

The law now provides that if a strike prevents a worker from crossing a picket line by threats or violence, he can be sentenced to two years in prison. There is no provision for punishing a management representative who attacks a picket.

A soil testing program for Arkansas farmers, to be financed by a higher tax on fertilizer, was approved in both chambers. The legislators also voted to remove the two per cent sales tax on food, seed and fertilizer to help livestock and poultry producers, over the objections of Cherry, who said the bill would cost the state three million dollars a year.

The session was not without its moments of hilarity, and one of its biggest controversies revolved around a proposed tax on the state's bachelors. Introduced as a joke to enliven a dull day by Rep. Jack Bruton of Conway County, the bill brought down the wrath of the single male populace on Bruton's head and stirred up enough pressure to force the representatives to quickly kill it.

Acid comment on the humor of the situation—or lack of it, according to the view—filled newspaper "reader" columns for weeks.

Nobody knows just how much money the Legislature appropriated. Finance Director Frank Storey Jr., said that it's said that it's impossible to determine the figure right now, and said he'd announce the total in a week or 10 days. Some of the larger appropriations bills—for example that for the Highway Department—weren't introduced and passed until the closing days of the session.

Efforts of a House bloc to cut off funds from the Game and Fish Commission until the agency gave in to the legislators' demands for modification of some Commission regulations, dragged out over nearly the entire session.

Finally, the once strong anti-Commission group dwindled away to almost nothing, and the House approved a Senate bill to make the regular biennial allotment for Game and Fish.

House critics of the agency wanted the Commission to permit free hunting and fishing for persons 65 and older; allow squirrels and rabbits to be hunted without licenses for hunters or dogs, and give up authority the Commission had assumed over commercial fish farming.

The Commission, with constitutional powers to make its own regulations, gave the House requests polite attention—and nothing else.

A requested appropriation for the Commission failed in the House several times before one finally was passed.

Another controversy that got its share of headlines before fading into the obscurity of defeat was the so-called "installment credit purchasing bill."

Proponents of the measure said

three other men aboard the downed plane had been found dead.

The incident came just two days after a U. S. Air Force jet was shot down by MIGs near the frontier between Czechoslovakia and the U. S. Zone of Germany. In that case the downed pilot bailed out, suffered only scratches.

The best available information on today's shooting was this: The British plane was attacked by two fighter planes as it flew westward, apparently from Berlin, toward West Germany through one of the three narrow air corridors which Allied planes are required to follow over Soviet-occupied East Germany.

It fell just across the border inside East Germany near the Elbe River town of Boizenburg.

West German police at the frontier expressed belief that six men were aboard the British plane and that four had parachuted.

The hospital said the sergeant brought in dead carried a daily assignment schedule from a British military unit at Hamburg, 20 miles northwest of the area in on the Senate floor that the bill was designed to "get around the Constitution and overrule the state Supreme Court." It would have allowed finance companies to assess service charges on installment purchases in excess of the 10 per cent constitutional limit on interest.

The Supreme Court ruled last year that the service charges were unconstitutional. The Senate passed the bill despite its supporters' outspokesness, but the House defeated the measure.

which the plane crashed.

The Royal Air Force had no comment immediately on the incident, even more than an hour after details had been confirmed. Its comment likely was being delayed because of the delicate international implications.

In London the foreign office announced a British plane had been shot down near the frontier of East Germany. A spokesman said "it is known that military exercises were going on in the district at the time, but it's not clear whether or not the downed plane was a Royal Air Force machine."

A West German policeman said "the fighter planes must have shot at the parachutes of the escaping victims because one parachute had a big bullet hole."

ton Collins, army chief of staff, said there have been no shortages. Secretary of Defense Wilson and other officials, however, indicated there have been some—particularly of artillery shells—but that they have been or are being corrected.

Byrd and Chairman Saltonstall (R-Mass.) said in separate interviews they favor creation of a subcommittee to keep an eye on the situation.

Saltonstall said he would propose a three-man subcommittee to continue the ammunition investigation with emphasis on "cutting down red tape in getting ammunition."

"There has not been enough priority and impetus behind the ammunition program," he said. "Civilian production was allowed to interfere. There was not enough needling and pushing of the factories which had contracts."

Red aircraft approached and opened fire.

The U. S. within a matter of hours registered an official protest with the Red Czech government at Prague, asserting that the clash took place over West Germany and protesting against a territorial violation.

Prague, as expected, yesterday turned down the protest and told the American Embassy the clash occurred after the U. S. planes had penetrated Czech air space and refused to obey an order to land.

Protests Grow to Red Probe Among Clergy
By HARRY P. SNYDER
WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Kearney (R-N.Y.) said today he is "absolutely opposed" to any search by the House Un-American Activities Committee for Reds among clergymen and will demand a quick showdown on the suggestion.
Word from Chairman Velde (R-Ill.) that the group might sometime undertake such an investigation stirred up protests from a number of church figures, including Velde's own pastor, and approval from others.
Velde said during a radio interview Monday night that "it is entirely possible" that the committee would get into the church field, possibly looking into the records of churchmen "who seem to have devoted more time to politics than they have to the ministry."
He issued a statement late yesterday saying that such an investigation had not been considered by the committee and "is not contemplated at this time by me."
His statement "does not preclude the possibility of such investigations in the future," Velde said but he added, "there is no need as I see it to consider this matter further now."
Five of Velde's eight committee colleagues promptly made clear the chairman was not speaking for them in suggesting any such inquiry. Kearney said in an interview:
"I am demanding that Chairman Velde call a committee meeting immediately."
Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), perhaps Congress' best-known Red hunter, left no doubt that Velde would have the field to himself if he wants to go through with a hunt for Reds in the clergy.
"He has my complete, whole-hearted assurance there is not the remotest possibility of our overlapping," McCarthy told interviewers.
Albany, N. Y., settled by the Dutch in 1614, is believed to have been the second settlement within the borders of what became the 13 original colonies of the United States.

McGrath Is Accused by Grand Jury
MIAMI, Fla., (UP)—A special federal grand jury investigating racketeering has accused former Atty. Gen. J. Howard McGrath of using the grand jury system as a "smoke screen" and a "grandstand play."
The jury reported to Judge John W. Holland yesterday that it "refused to become a party to the McGrath scheme and permit the grand jury to be used as a whitewash for political purposes."
The report was signed by the group's foreman, President McGregor Smith of the Florida Power and Light Company.
Shortly after the jury was empaneled a year ago, the report stated, it became "perfectly apparent that no information would be given to the jury and the U.S. attorney knew that none was available that would show the existence of crime, organized crime or racketeering."
The report added: "It was crystal clear that the jury system was being used by the attorney general's office as a smoke screen."
"On the second day of this jury's sessions, we discussed at length among ourselves the correspondence setting up these juries. We resented keenly that the head of the Justice Department would use the grand jury system as a grandstand play."
The grand jury's report to Judge Holland said McGrath's purported scheme resulted in the calling of many "special" juries throughout the nation, and went on to say:
"By the time we got started, some juries had already performed and reported everything quiet, no organized crime, maybe some local violations of gambling laws, etc., and thanks for the splendid cooperation of the Justice Department."
McGrath reported to be visiting in Miami was not immediately available for comment.
The jury reported that one of the immediate results of its own investigation was the launching of deportation and denaturalization proceedings against four persons listed among 60 alleged racketeers or criminals.

McCarthy Knows About Hot Potatoes

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Any suggestion that Congress look for Communists among the clergy is a very hot potato. But, while Sen. McCarthy knows a hot potato when he sees it, Congressman Velde juggles it.

That's one difference between these two Republicans—McCarthy of Wisconsin and Velde of Illinois—who nevertheless have some points in common.

McCarthy, 44, and Velde, 43, are both lawyers. Both were judges in their home states. And both are busy beating the bushes for Communists.

Two days ago Velde, chairman but apparently not boss of the House Un-American Activities Committee, which has been searching for Communists in education, made a statement about the possibility of looking for Reds among clergymen.

The roof fell in. All members of his committee who could be reached were against the idea. And some, but not all clergymen, made statements giving him the low state.

Confronted with this reaction, Velde said he may have been misinterpreted. McCarthy, watching Velde try to get his feet out of the flypaper, announced Velde could have any investigation of the clergy all to himself.

"I wasn't aware," said McCarthy, "of his plans to make such an investigation. He has my complete, wholehearted assurance there is not even the remotest possibility of our overlapping."

McCarthy, who began his rise to national attention in 1950 with charges of Communists in the State Department, is still working on the same project. He's chairman of a Senate committee investigating the department's Voice of America.

But there is another difference between these two former judges. McCarthy can walk into a briar patch and come out acting like a man who landed in a rosebed. Velde sometimes gets scratched up.

"I have been called," said McCarthy recently, "probably every name in the world and it has not been effective against McCarthy. I have been accused of everything except murdering my grandmother."

Velde tangled recently with Mrs. Agnes Meyer, wife of Eugene Meyer, board chairman of the Washington Post. In a talk to a group of school administrators she criticized Velde and plans for investigating schools and colleges.

Velde tried to hit back by saying Mrs. Meyer had been mentioned by Pravda as writing to a Russian journal a letter expressing profound admiration for the people of the Soviet Union.

The Post investigated and found that the writer was not only not Mrs. Meyer but had a different

Two TV Stations for Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Little Rock may have two television stations on the air by Aug. 1. One station, KRTV, owned by Little Rock Telecasters, Inc., is expected to be in operation on Channel 17 by April 1. KRTV, owned by Great Plains Television Properties, Inc., is expected to be ready for operation by Aug. 1. However, Herbert Scheffel, New York, president of Great Plains, said here yesterday the broadcast date for KRTV is only tentative, depending on delivery of transmission and antenna equipment.

Scheffel and Oscar Reed, a Washington radio engineer, were here arranging sites for studio and antenna towers. Both will be located within the city limits.

KRTV will be an ultra-high frequency (UHF) station operating on Channel 28. It will cost approximately $500,000 and will have an initial range of around 30 to 40 miles from Little Rock.

Old Settlement Is Improvement Winner

LITTLE ROCK, (UP) — One of the oldest settlements in Arkansas, Belma in East Drew County, has been chosen as first place winner in the 1952 Arkansas Community Improvement Program.

The award was announced at a banquet during a Rural Leaders Conference here last night. Belma won $200. The other winners were: Wye, Perry County, second place, $100; Washburn, Belton County, third place, $50; and Antioch, Craighead County fourth place, $25. There were 48 communities entered in the contest.

The Drew County community was cited for its community park, road signs, beautification of roads, soil testing, winter cover crop program and school improvements.

The Arkansas Power and Light Co., Arkansas Press Association and the Agricultural Extension Service, sponsored the contest.

A Greene County community, Fairview, was the winner of the sweepstakes. Fairview won the first place award last year.

The Paragould Big Picture was named the newspaper which gave the most support to the program during the year.

Principal speaker at the presentation banquet last night was Dr. John Tyler Caldwell, president of the University of Arkansas.

Caldwell said that small communities produce leaders with the sense and understanding of some of our most precious values.

Ike Has Nearly Doomed T-H Law Revision

WASHINGTON, (UP) — Union and industry officials said today that President Eisenhower's hands off attitude has all but doomed any chance for revision of the Taft-Hartley law this year.

Spokesmen for the AFL, CIO and National Association of Manufacturers agreed that Congress is likely to let the controversial labor law stand as it is unless or until the administration throws its support to specific changes.

Mr. Eisenhower originally planned to send a state of administration recommendations to Congress for revision of the law. But he notified congressional leaders yesterday that he will not take a stand on the matter, at least until congressional committees finish their current hearings on the proposed changes.

Ben. Robert A. Taft (R-O.) co-author of the law said after a White House conference that the administration may not send up any recommendations at all.

Meanwhile a Supreme Court ruling set off a flurry of congressional demands for tightening of the Taft-Hartley laws "anti-feather bedding" provision.

In two similar cases affecting the printers' and musicians' unions, the court held 6 to 3 yesterday that the provision as it now stands does not prevent unions from negotiating "makework" contracts with employers to provide jobs for union members.

Rep. Carroll D. Kearna (R-Pa.) said the court ruling "strongly and tremendously" the chances that Congress will adopt his proposal to forbid unions to demand that employers pay for any work that is not necessary or required to be performed. The law now forbids payment only for work that is "not performed or not to be performed."

Sentenced for Slaying Grandmother

JACKSON, (UP) — Clinton Dodson, 16, was sentenced to 15 years in the Arkansas penitentiary here today on a second degree murder charge in the fatal shooting last Jan. 2 of his 68-year-old grandmother.

Dodson had pleaded guilty to a first degree murder charge, but at the request of Prosecuting Attorney Alton Bittle of Heber Springs, Circuit Judge Wood Murray of Harrison changed it to second degree.

Mrs. Dora Dodson was shot at the mountain cabin near Red Rock, 20 miles southeast of here, where she and Dodson lived alone. He told officers originally that the elderly woman had shot him first, and he shot her in return in self defense. Later, however, he changed his story. He said he was tired of her "nagging" him for his drinking.

Visiting Around Arkansas BY JOE MARSH

DATE TO REMEMBER ... and Keep!

Biggest event of the late winter or early spring for most of us is the settling up time on March 15. My New Year's resolution to avoid the last minute rush usually is the first one broken of the year, but somehow I manage to get in under the wire and make my settlement with Uncle Sam before the penalty period.

I've avoided the words—Income tax—up to now, but they always roll around, just like March 15. Sometimes payments hurt and pinch, but the settlement is the price we pay to live in a free country and reap the benefits of a democracy.
